

A FEW OF COLLEGE STUDENTS.—The college men seem to feel the loss of their well-earned sleep, as they did the loss of the "old-fashioned" night. In consideration of this fact, a number of them assembled near the college last evening, and, with faces masked and persons enveloped in "winding sheets" of white, took up their "line of march" through the principal streets to the enraptured music of fife and drum. Their ghastly appearance, as they marched in single file under the glare of blazing torches and transparencies, attracted the attention of every one, and as it was near that "witching hour when churchyards yawn" some who gazed upon the weird procession did not know but that the grave in reality had given up its dead. Regardless of surmises, however, the "grave" visaged "corps" moved on to the "dead" beat of the drum, and not a word spoke they until the circuit of the principal thoroughfares had been made. We inferred from the transparencies which they bore, that like a certain biblical character they were "drawn up" in such imposing array for the purpose of getting it.

We did not see any beverage of that nature, however, and we came to the conclusion that the demonstration did not work "well." The procession collapsed on Thayer street, where they gave six very able groans, equally divided in favor of two parties, who were not present—the finale being brought about by a shout that "He's coming!" which was followed by a miraculously sudden putting out of the transparencies and torches, and equally rapid "putting out" of the procession, who disappeared by a species of leger-main with which our reporter is not conversant. The curtain falls upon a forlorn drummer and an equally forlorn fifer, keeping time to the music of flying feet, and wrapped in wonderment, as to who was to settle for their valuable services in the great demonstration.—[Providence Herald.]

HOW TO MAKE A COAL FIRE.—If everybody knew how to make a coal fire, there would be more comfort inside, and less smoke outside the house, in cold weather. Before you throw on the coals, pull all the fire to the front of the grate toward the bars, fill in the cavity at the back with the cinders or ashes which will be found under the grate, then throw on the coals. The gas evolved in the process of roasting the coals will be absorbed by the cinders, and render them in an increased degree combustible. The smoke will thus be burnt, and a fine, glowing, smokeless fire, will be the result.

TO REMOVE A MOTE FROM THE EYE.—Take a horse hair and double it, leaving a loop. If the mote can be seen, lay the loop over it, close the eye, and the mote will come out as the hair is withdrawn. If the irritating object cannot be seen, raise the lid of the eyes as far as possible, and place the loop as far in as you can, close the eye and roll the ball around a few times, then draw out the hair; the substance which causes so much pain will be sure to come with it. This method is practiced by ax-makers and other workers in steel.

DON'T.—Don't advertise: it is a very bad plan. It will call attention to your business, and it is much better for people who wish to trade with you to hunt you up. It gives your customers exercise, and makes them healthy. Besides, if you advertise, somebody will buy up all your goods, and then you will have to get more and it will be a great bother to you.—Exchange.

WORTH KNOWING.—A correspondent of the Maine Farmer says: "Many a housewife may be glad to know, when she has a piece of fresh meat that she wishes to keep a few days, that it can be successfully done by placing it in a dish and covering it with milk. Sour milk or buttermilk will do as well. I have proved the plan for years."

A PUZZLE.—When a girl of 15 years of age marries a man of 45 years of age, of course, is 3 times as old as she. After having lived together for 15 years, she will be 30 and he will be 60 years of age, the husband being but twice as old as his wife. How long according to this rule, would they have to live together that she would be of the same age as he?

ANOTHER WALK.—Weston the walkist and humbug has started off another walk and this time from Bangor, Me., to St. Paul, Minnesota and return by a different route to New York—a distance of 5,000 miles. The task is to be accomplished in one hundred days for a purse of $20,000.

A REGIMENTAL COFFIN-MAKER was asked whom he was making a coffin for, and mentioned the intended. "Why, he is not dead, man!" said the querist. "Don't you trouble yourself," replied the other: "Dr. Coe told us to make his coffin, and I guess he knows what he gave him."

To make a valuable speckled dog bullet-proof, Mark Twain says: "Take off his hide and line it with sheet iron—Russia iron is the best, and is silky and more showy than the common kind.—Dogs prepared in this way do not mind bullets."

A WORD TO THE FARMERS' BOYS.—Stick to your fathers' farms, young men. Store your minds at home with good practical knowledge. Begin early to raise stock, and to care for valuable animals. Love your noble calling. Feel a deep interest in it and strive ever to succeed. It was the first vocation which God on earth assigned to man; it must be the occupation of the last man, too. Commune with Nature and Nature's God. Become that noblest work of God, an honest man. Earning your bread by the edict of the Almighty in the sweat of your face.

The Zion's Herald says that a few weeks since a little girl was brought to the Massachusetts Hospital, in Boston, to be subjected to a severe surgical operation the only thing that could save her life.—As the medical professor, in the presence of his class, placed her on the surgical table, she lay down, and clapping her hands together and lifting up her eyes, exclaimed, "Oh, Jesus, I know Thou lovest me, and if I die I shall go right home to heaven." The good professor was so much affected that he could not immediately proceed, and nearly all were moved to tears.

ANIMALS IN HINDOOSTAN.—The Hindoo saint extends hospitality alike to friends and enemies. When he eats he shares his food with whatever creature presents itself. He refrains from honey from reluctance to deprive his bees from their nourishment. He will not eat flesh because he shrinks from causing the death of any animal. He avoids lighting a candle at night lest insects should be drawn into the flame; and he filters the water he drinks lest he should incautiously swallow some creature. Hindoos will die rather than taste beef—a fact which has often been proved on board of vessels where all the provision were expended except salt beef. Indeed, all animals have a degree of sacredness to a devout Hindoo. Those that subsist on vegetables are supposed to be favored by divine beings. They believe every animal is endowed with thought and memory, and has some mode of communicating its ideas to its own species.

At Surat is a Banian hospital where diseased and aged animals are watched with tenderness care. Kindness towards animals inculcated in all the sacred books and everywhere practiced as a religious duty, forms a lovely feature in Asiatic religions which Christianity would do well to imitate. True, it is founded on sympathy produced by belief in the transmigration of souls. But a friendly relation between men and animals is beneficial and good; and though Christians do not believe the soul of an ancestor may have passed into a horse, they might practice from a higher motive. Tenderness towards the dumb creatures of God would harmonize with the spirit of the religion they profess; and to acquire if they merely need to apply the first and most obvious rule of natural religion: "How should I like to be treated if I were a horse?"—Lydia Maria Child.

Two persons in the Bloomington, Ill. jail, gagged and bound the jailer and escaped. After they had bound the jailer securely, they rolled him into the cell which Cruse had just before vacated, put a thin pillow under his head, spread a coarse blanket over his breast, hoped he would be comfortable till morning, told him to ring the bell if he wanted anything, suggested that he would rest easier on his back than in any other position; and after all this useless ceremony they locked the door of his cell. They then unlocked the doors of several other cells, and told the prisoners they might choose their choice of staying or leaving. Their next move was for the jailer's room, where they made a stay of more than an hour. They wrote a letter to the jailer and one to Sheriff Pike, and informed those officers that they had nothing to complain of except their confinement. Both protested that they were innocent and hoped the jailer would not blame them for leaving so unceremoniously. Then walked quietly out of the jailer's room at about three o'clock on Saturday morning, and left no direction as to their proposed route. The names of those jail birds are respectively Cruse and Wilson.

You are getting into years. Yes, but years are getting into you—the ripe years, the genial years, the lusty, luscious years. One by one the crudities of your youth are falling from you, the vanity, egotism, the insulation, the bewilderment, the uncertainty. Nearer and nearer you are approaching yourself. You are becoming master of your situation. On the ruins of shattered plans you find your vantage ground. Your broken hopes, your thwarted purposes, your defeated aspirations, become a staff of strength by which you mount to a sublimer height.—With self-possession and self-command of all things, the title deed of creation, forfeited, is reclaimed. The king has to his own again. Earth and sea and sky pour out their largest of love. All the crowds pass down to lay their treasure at your feet.—Jk. Marrel.

The story of the Princess de Metternich having nursed the babe of her former maid at her breast, reminds an Austrian journalist of the fact that the Empress of Austria, in 1859, did the same thing with the babe of the widow of a soldier, who had been killed at Solferino. His wife lived at Luxemburg, and the news of her husband's death threw her upon a long sick-bed, so that she was unable to suckle her child. The Empress who knew her and came to visit her found that the poor mother could not nurse her child, and took the little creature to her own breast until a wet-nurse, for whose services the kind hearted Elizabeth paid, had been provided.

ST. LOUIS AND IRON MOUNTAIN Railroad Company's Seven per cent. first Mortgage Bonds. February and August Coupons. The earnings of the completed road to Pilot Knob are now more than the interest on the entire mortgage. The proceeds of these Bonds are added to the security every day.—Over $8,000,000 have been on the property, and not over $2,000,000 of bonds issued thus far.—The constantly increasing traffic of carrying ore, with the prospect of controlling all the travel from St. Louis to the Southern States, ensures an enormous revenue. The Directors own 8-10 of the stock for investment, and are interested to enrich the property as well as to economize its expenses.

THOS. ALLEN, President, Mo. We, the undersigned, cordially recommend these seven per cent. mortgage bonds, of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad, as a good security. The revenue of the affairs of the Company is in capable and experienced hands, and is entitled to the greatest confidence of the public.
